

Caring for your mattress

Your bed is covered with the finest ticking available however it must be remembered that underneath the cover is padding materials which should not become wet, so only light sponging should be attempted to remove soil marks. We always recommend the use of a good quality mattress protector to keep the surface of your mattress free from soiling. In humid climates it is also a good idea to slide your mattress off the base once or twice a year and lean it against a wall for a few hours to minimise the possibility of mildew occurring.
